

Reporting an accident to the Texas Auto Insurance

Contributed by Administrator
Sunday, 18 May 2008

Have your obligations clearly recorded with underwriting in your Texas Auto Insurance policy, understand what you have required in your policy and be sure about some of the exemptions of the Texas auto insurance company. Getting a policy is the first part of the security and reporting the incident with due proofs is the next major step to enjoy maximum benefits of your policy.

The sooner you experience a road hit ensure that all the passengers are doing fine. Sometimes the accident can lead to leakage of the oil increasing the chance of an outburst of fire. Switch off the oil, and set the vehicle aside to a safe stand. If you have a camera make sure that you photograph the scene and report the incident immediately to the Texas Auto Insurance Company and record the event with them.

The people victimized in the scene should be checked for requirement for any treatment. Some may say they are not injured, but they are likely to have blunt injuries that do not show up immediately. To be on the safer side, report and record every person involved for making a possible claim in your Texas Auto Insurance policy. If after registering them they do not show any medical needs, it is fair and you can just exclude them later from the claims. But initially it will be a precautionary measure, if you have everyone registered and reported.

When you are reporting the accident to the Texas Auto Insurance you need to report the following details:-

- Identify the vehicle to the call center by making a reference to your policy number and other details of the vehicle like the model, make, and registration number etcetera.
- The location in which the accident occurred and about who were traveling in what direction and related details.
- Registration of the injuries that are visible immediately, blunt injuries should be supported with future medical certification.
- Damages to the vehicle that is visible to you, the evaluator will make a deeper examination.
- Identification details of the victimized people and the spot witnesses.
- Driver license details of the involved drivers in the event.
- Do not forget to register the event with the nearest police station.

In maximum cases, try to leave the vehicle on the spot. If by further driving something is going to cause an exacerbated damage to the vehicle the Texas Auto Insurance company will not pay you for it!